Daily reports in the media stress the urgency of the issue of global migrations that pose pressing political, economic, and moral and ethical challenges. In a series of monthly meetings and events over the course of the academic year UNCG faculty and students will study this issue from a variety of disciplinary perspectives in order to analyze current refugee crises that occur around the globe in relation to concrete historical and political situations. Thanks to sponsorship from the UNCG College of Arts and Sciences Ashby Dialogues our events will include guest speakers from other institutions and a film screening. Participating students are invited to write a policy paper or research project in consultation with participating faculty.

Join us for our first meeting on Tuesday, September 8 from 3:30-4:45

in MHRA 1607.
