Colleague -to- Colleague Grant & Fellowship Development Program

You've Decided to Apply for a Grant...

NOW WHAT?

Faculty with experience as grant and fellowship recipients and/or who have been on review panels serve as Senior Research Mentors to faculty who would like some one-on-one consultation regarding a planned request for external funding.

Program available to the extent funds permit.

WOULD YOU LIKE HELP FROM AN EXPERIENCED COLLEAGUE?

Would you like some one-on-one consultation regarding your planned request for external funding? Would you like an expert, other than a collaborator, in your field to provide you feedback on your proposal? We may be able to match you with an experienced scholar here at UNCG to assist you. This program is in addition to the opportunity to seek an external evaluation of your proposal prior to submission. Faculty at all ranks are encouraged to participate.

To find a Mentor, please contact:

- Stan Faeth at shfaeth@uncg.edu for faculty in the social, behavioral, biological or natural sciences or math
- Lisa Levenstein at llevens@uncg.edu for faculty in the humanities

Timeline:

Please initiate this process at least three (3) months before your proposal is due (preferably sooner).

ARE YOU WILLING TO HELP A COLLEAGUE?

Faculty with experience as grant and fellowship recipients and/or who have been on review panels are invited to serve as Senior Research Mentors. Primary tasks involve helping faculty in your area of expertise, who are not collaborators, on their grant proposals by providing feedback in the early stages of proposal preparation, as well as reading the final proposal. We would acknowledge your contribution by providing $500 to support your own scholarly work.

To serve as a Mentor, please contact:

- Stan Faeth at shfaeth@uncg.edu for faculty in the social, behavioral, biological or natural sciences or math
- Lisa Levenstein at llevens@uncg.edu for faculty in the humanities
