Welcome to Academic Year 2022-23!

We hope you had a restful summer with some travel
Budget Update (1)

• Although UNCG is financially fundamentally sound, the decline in continuing students has significant consequences.

• Funding formula from the state has undergone a draconian change. The implications from these changes are unclear but do not appear favorable to UNCG.

• We will not have confirmed student credit hour figures until the October census, but we have continued decreased enrollment. Anticipated decline was 2%; but a rough estimate is that the decline will be 5%.

• In May 2022, CAS received 31 requests for TT and other faculty resources. CAS put forward the top 10 most critical needs.

• It appears that only 1 of these TT positions will be funded due to the severe nature of the budget situation.

• We will have more details in the coming weeks and will facilitate conversations for us to work together on creative ideas, and immediate/longer-term solutions.

Budget Update-New Funding Model (2)

• In the new model, on average the cost-per-SCH was increased for undergraduate SCHs and decreased for graduate SCHs.

• In addition, performance measures can adjust SCH weight by 1-2%.

• There are five performance measures defined by the System Office, and one the university defines:
  • 4-year graduation rate
  • Undergrad Degree Efficiency (# of undergrads completed per 100 FTE of students)
  • Avg Cumulative Debt at Completion of Undergrad for First-time Freshmen
  • Avg Cumulative Debt at Completion of Undergrad for Transfer Students
  • Education and Related Expenses per Degree
  • UNCG defined: External Expenditures
Congratulations to our TT faculty who were promoted!
